Roller Coaster Physics. Launch Gizmo. Adjust the hills on a toy-car roller coaster and watch what happens as the car careens toward an egg (that can be broken) at the end of the track. The heights of three hills can be manipulated, along with the mass of the car and the friction of the track. A graph of various variables of motion can be viewed as the car travels, including position, speed, acceleration, potential energy, kinetic energy, and total energy.

Before we proceed any further with the analysis of what forces a person experiences on a roller coaster, we will assume that the roller coaster car does not experience any friction or air resistance. With that in mind, there will be two forces that act upon the roller coaster car: the FORCE OF GRAVITY (F GRAV) and the Normal Force (F NORMAL). The normal force is directed in the direction of the track, while the gravitational force is always directed downwards.

Students begin by creating a mind map that illustrates the connections between physics concepts and energy. Students use a simulation and a set of handouts to carry out an investigation of the physics of roller coasters.During the closure activity at the end of this lesson, I ask students to construct a headline about the most important and challenging parts of today's lesson.
